Three Part Cards

How to Use the Asia Three Part Cards

Print the Asia three part cards on cardstock. Cut out cards. One card will be cut apart on the dotted lines.

The card with the name attached is the control card. Teach the child using the control cards.

Lesson one: Say, "This is a pagoda (and point to it); this is the Forbidden City" (and point).

Lesson two: Say, "Can you show me the pagoda? Can you show me the Forbidden City?"

Lesson three: Say, "What is this called (point to the pagoda)?" "What is this called (point to the Forbidden City)?"

Start by laying out a few cards, then increase as child learns more. Eventually, the child should be able to match all the cut cards. After the child is done, he checks his work with the control cards.

Additionally, a child can take alphabet manipulatives such as letter tiles or alphabet magnets and spell the words on the cards and check his work with the controls. Your student could also stamp the words on the cards with alphabet stamps.
